SPRINGFIELD SUN, ROGERS GORE, EDITOR.

"WOE TO HIM THAT BUILDETH A TOWN WITH BLOOD, AND STABILIZETH A CITY BY INIQUITY."

Recent "remarks" of Editor Sam D. Roberts, of the Lexington Leader, prove that he is not afraid to speak out in meeting. In the following convincing language Mr. Roberts tells HOW Bradley was elected and HOW the county unit bill was killed:

"The very things we feared came to pass. As the Senatorial deadlock continued, everything was done to aggravate rather than allay party feeling, and every measure looking to better political conditions upon which the Republicans had set their hearts was abandoned in the struggle to manipulate legislation in the interest of Gov. Bradley's Senatorial candidacy. The county unit bill, to which the Republicans were pledged in their party platform, was traded upon for weeks, and was in a fair way to be shelved in the House by Republican votes, until a storm of protests compelled a complete change of program.

"The election of Gov. Bradley as Senator by the votes of three recognized Democratic liquor representatives, on the day after the county unit bill passed the lower House, was explained by the assurance that enough Republican votes in the Senate had been pledged to defeat the temperance measure; and it is a remarkable coincidence that exactly three Republican Senators, just enough to reinforce the whisky Democrats, voted against every proposition looking to the passage of the county unit bill from the election of Bradley to the final adjournment of the General Assembly.

"The election of Gov. Bradley to the United States Senate by this unholy alliance was accomplished by the sacrifice of every hope of securing non-partisan registration, election and redistricting laws, and by the practical repudiation of the Republican platform declaration in favor of a uniform county unit bill, and it has wrecked Gov. Wilson's administration so far as constructive political legislation is concerned, and opened the way for the rehabilitation of Gov. Beckham on a temperance platform.

"The United States Senatorship was not worth the price the Republicans of Kentucky paid for it, and we believe the day will come when the election of Senator Bradley will be looked upon as a party calamity.

The above brands the Republican party in Kentucky with a "scarlet letter." When we consider that Mr. Roberts is one of the leaders of his party the accusation he makes must necessarily fall heavily upon the honorable men who affiliate with the Republicans.

Sanitation destroys typhoid fever germs.

A bushel of lime will cost less than a box of pills.

NOW is the time to observe cleanliness, and to remember that it is next to Godliness.

Screen out the flies; the little devils are "death messengers."

Weeds are miserably foul, and are hot-beds of disease.

Sip not from the old wells about town.

Hon. Harry McChesney has opened a law office in Frankfort, and will actively engage in the practice of law. Mr. McChesney served the State four years as Superintendent of Public Instruction and another four years as Secretary of State. He was an excellent official; he's a good fellow, a strong Democrat, and we are sure he will prove to the public that he is a good lawyer. Harry McChesney has preached Democracy from every stump in Kentucky; he preached it in a manner that made the boys "rise to their feet and whoop, and then sit down and stamp," and we will be delighted to hear that he has "got there with both feet" in the practice of his profession.

A. Floyd Byrd, the brilliant lawyer who acquired fame by his prosecution of the Hargis cases, has announced his candidacy for Congress in the Tenth district. The district is now represented by Mr. Langley, Republican. Last November the district gave a majority of 600 for the Republican State ticket.

William O'Connell Bradley, "the grand old man" of the Republican party of Kentucky, has "smeared on" the warpaint, twirled his tomahawk, limbered his limbs in savage shindy, and is now upon the raging stump war-whooping against Taft. And we of the Democratic party are giggling; we are clapping our hands—because it's fun to see Blustering Billy gesticulating in such a splendid manner. Intimations of Republican origin are given out that W. O. B. is receiving "so much" per spiel, and it is asserted that when he gets through with Taft—there will be a lot of stuff in the inside pocket of the gentleman, who, in the opinion of Mr. Roberts, of Lexington, was elected to the United States Senate by an "unholy alliance." In this instance Bradley may be smorting free of charge—he may be rearing up and kicking up just for the satisfaction of showing his hoofs to the fellows in front and his heels to the fellows behind. However, it is not often that the Wiley Willie gives a free show, and we have every reason to believe there is some powerful coxer behind his present effort.

The Kentucky State Journal is opposed to adding four more big battleships to our navy. We are astonished!—dumbfounded! We can't understand why Bro. Walton has turned his back upon the old custom of preparing for war in time of peace. An "old scrapper" like the editor of the State Journal ought to advocate the manufacture of big guns, with "hair triggers," and double-acting apparatuses, that will make the bullets fly faster than snowflakes in whirlwinds.

Mr. Watterson says: "Personally, I have no doubt that Mr. Bryan will be nominated at Denver, and I think that we have a good chance to elect him." Now, that sounds good. Fact is, it is delightful to Democratic ears. "We have a good chance to elect him." The attention of the reader is called to the "we" in the sentence.

"The Jeffersonian," Curtis Alcock's paper, published at Jeffersonton, Ky., has expanded from a six to a seven column sheet, and takes rank now with the best country weeklies in the State.

Eight Children Left Orphans.

Midway, Ky., April 20.—Two deaths have just taken place in this community, and as a result eight children, the youngest of whom is only two months of age, are left fatherless and motherless.

On last Thursday Mr. Ryland Willoughby, a tenant on the farm of Mr. James B. Moore, near Midway, started in a buggy with wife and little babe for Georgetown, where they intended to spend part of the day in shopping. When within two miles of that city Mrs. Willoughby became suddenly ill, suffering at first from a fainting spell. She grew quickly worse and died a short time after reaching Georgetown. Coming back home, deeply grieved at the loss of his companion, the heartbroken father began at once to arrange for the comfort of his little ones, so suddenly deprived of a mother's love and influence.

On Saturday morning he and his oldest son left home in a two-horse wagon for a load of coal. The coal was loaded on the wagon, and all went well with them until they were almost at home, when, in driving the team through the farm-gate, the father became caught between one of the wagon wheels and the gate post. Just at this time the team made a sudden lunge and his body was pinioned, seriously injuring him about the stomach. He was taken to his home, only a short distance from where the accident occurred, but lived only a short time after reaching there.

The accident was a horrible one, and his death, as also the sad death of his wife, is greatly deplored in the entire community. The family came originally from Eastern Kentucky, but for several years have made their home in Scott county, having but recently moved to the farm of Mr. Moore. His funeral was held on Saturday afternoon.

LONGING
Byron Williams.

I am faded and cloyed with the struggle
In the field of slaves.
And my heart is a thirst for the woodland
Where the pulsing river lives.

I am sick for the life of the grasses,
For the peace of the soulful elm.
For the joy of a Nature song,
For a drift with an unarméd helm!

Ah! My heart, in the depth of the valleys
Where the rivulet sings along!
Is as glad as the world that is bursting
With the joy of a Nature song.

And the thrushes are trilling their love songs,
With the kingfisher shrieks with glee,
And the skater bugs skip on the willows
While en route to a far off sea.

See the cardinal flash in the bushes
And the tanager lit on high,
From a monarch dethroned by the lightning,
Near the red-head vent his cry!

Ah! A mudturtle creeps up the pathway
For a jog at his turtle pace.
See him hide in his shell when the barefoot
With a whoop, meets him face to face!

And the swimming hole, deep in the bayou,
Is a pulse with a cooling strain.
To the boy it is calling and calling
To its cooling depths again!

I am faded and cloyed with the struggle
In the field of slaves.
I would yield to the call of the river
Where the pulsing billow lives!

I would go to the elm and the clover
And forget all the woes I feel;
I would sink into rest in the grasses:
All at-thirst at the spring I'd kneel.

I am faded and cloyed with the struggle
In the field of slaves.
I would like to go back to the country,
To the land that HE made, again!

Death of Mr. Homan.

Mr. L. M. Homan, a highly respected citizen of the Willisburg neighborhood, died suddenly Friday night at 11:15 o'clock. He had been in ill health for quite a while, but his death came very unexpectedly. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church, and was a conscientious Christian. He was an accommodating neighbor and was charitable toward all people. In his death the community, as well as his family, has sustained a severe loss.

The deceased is survived by his wife three children and one sister. The children are Mr. C. W. Homan, of Willisburg, Miss Emma Homan, of Willisburg, and Mr. J. S. Homan, of Illinois; the sister is Mrs. J. H. Baker, of near Carlisle.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lyon Monday morning and interment occurred at Willisburg.

Condolence is extended to the bereaved family.

Celebrated Silver Wedding.

Last Saturday from 2 to 5 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. H. M. O'Nan celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage with a silver wedding at their country home three miles from town. Mrs. O'Nan had beautifully decorated her home with lilacs, red buds and carnations, and despite the misgiving weather a host of friends called to enjoy the beauty of the scene and the hospitality of their hosts and to bid them God-speed. Mr. and Mrs. O'Nan were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Anderson, of Danville, and Mrs. A. H. McChord, of Lebanon. Mr. and Mrs. O'Nan were the recipients of many handsome presents.

Acquitted.

Yesterday Sam Spalding, of color, was tried before Judge Lacey on the charge of selling whisky in local option territory. The evidence was that Nad Hardin had given Spalding money with which to get him whisky and that Spalding in turn gave it to another negro, who bought the whisky in Bard-town and delivered it to Spalding. Spalding then gave Nad his share of it for which the grand jury indicted the former, charging that a sale had been made. The jury found the defendant not guilty.

Isham-Waters.

On Tuesday evening, April 7, at half past seven o'clock, Miss Lula Waters, of Parksville, and Mr. James J. Isham were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Edwards, an uncle of the bride. Miss Lula Waters, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. William Neveus was best man. After the ceremony supper was served to all, and after this a lawn party was given. The bride wore a gown of white satin made princess and covered with fine Irish bolnet. She carried Easter lilies and bride's roses. After one night's stay with the bride's parents, they left for Louisville, where they expect to spend their honeymoon. Mr. Isham is a well-known farmer of Washington county, while the bride is an excellent school teacher of Boyle county. We extend congratulations to the happy couple and wish them a long and happy life.

Corn To Go Higher.

Harrodsburg Herald: "Corn will sell 20 cents per bushel higher than wheat within the next ten years and stay there," is the view expressed by H. D. Wetmore, a grain man and globe trotter, who has given the subject much study. "Corn is very rapidly coming into its own, which means that it is worth more pound for pound than wheat as meat and fat producer," he said. "The world has but a limited area of land adaptable to raising corn, as it can only be produced at certain altitudes, while the wheat area is practically unlimited. The only reason that corn has always sold lower than wheat is because from the inception of the trade in this country the foreigner was unfamiliar with its uses and value, and we had always grown more than we could use at home. This country has now come to the point where it does not need to export corn and the grain therefore is rapidly assuming its rightful position among the cereals."

MISS LIDA

MATTINGLY

A Loved And Respected Young Woman, Passes Away After A Few Days' Illness of Bronchial Pneumonia.

Monday morning at 12:45 o'clock Miss Lida Mattingly died at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. J. F. Simms, of bronchial pneumonia, aged thirty-four years. Miss Mattingly was taken sick last Wednesday, when her family gave up all hope of her recovery. Miss Mattingly was the daughter of the late Martin Mattingly and of Mrs. Sallie Mattingly, who survives. The other members of the family who are living are Mrs. Cynthia Waterman, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., Mrs. J. F. Simms and Mrs. F. W. Simms, of Springfield, sisters, and Messrs. Ben J. and L. F. Mattingly, of Lebanon, and John and Bernard Mattingly, of Louisville, brothers. Her grandmother, Mrs. Cynthia Thompson, who is ninety-two years of age, is also living.

For the past ten years Miss Mattingly had made her home with the family of Mr. John F. Simms, and while her retiring, quiet disposition prevented her meeting many she nevertheless won the respect and admiration of all who knew her. No one could have been more considerate of the aged than she of her mother and venerable grandmother, no one more thoughtful of the comfort of her sister and the happiness of her young nieces and nephews than she, and while she has gone to a better home her influence is left behind and her kindness held in tender memory.

Funeral services were held at St. Dominic's church yesterday morning, after which the body was interred in St. Augustines cemetery in Lebanon.

I Have Come to Stay.

I have located in Springfield as a representative of the Montenegro-Riehms Music Co., of Louisville, Ky. We will place in the hands of the public high-grade pianos and organs at low prices. Any one can buy from us by making a small cash payment and easy monthly or quarterly payments, or payments as best suits the customer.

I call your attention especially to the Auto Player-Piano, which you will find on exhibition at Ed. M. Russell's Jewelry Store. The merits of this instrument are so numerous that it is useless to attempt to put them in print. For this reason we have put one in Mr. Russell's store, where you can see and hear it for yourself.

This instrument can be successfully operated by a child ten years of age.

I will be at Mr. Russell's store every court day and will be pleased to show the qualities of this instrument.

If you want an organ or piano, don't let this opportunity escape, as I am located here to keep all instruments in repair that I sell. C. H. BOHANNON.

Evening Post: Gov. Bradley is one of those unfortunate men who cannot stand a little temporary and accidental setback. The Republicans in the last Legislature tore their platform to tatters and sacrificed all important legislation to make Bradley Senator, and the work was accomplished by as odious an alliance as the party ever made.

After, with Democratic assistance, nullifying platform pledges for both parties, Gov. Bradley is sending his agents into every Republican district in Kentucky to stir up strife in the party, and to put party success in peril. In the Third district his campaign will serve only to imperil the election of a Republican Congressman, just as his activity here makes difficult the election of a Republican Congressman.

In the Eleventh district, failing to make Powers run against Edwards, a man named Mathews is sent into the district to attack Mr. Edwards and incidentally to denounce the Evening Post. When Bradley and his political guerrillas were silent or intimidated, and were doing nothing for civil liberty, when nothing less than $1,000 could drag Bradley to Kentucky to take the stump for Yarkes and civil liberty, the Evening Post every day was demanding for Powers and every man accused, a fair trial, and was raising money to employ counsel for every innocent man in peril.

Today, under the dappanous pretense of aiding Powers, Mathew and Bradley are roving over the State, seeking to revive the repudiated and discredited leadership of the past; to separate the Republicans of Kentucky from the progressive Republicans of the nation, and to surrender every district in the State, that Bradley may reign alone at Washington.

The sooner the Republicans make it clear that Bradley does not control the party in any of its purposes the stronger will the party be in this State. Kentucky may be induced to accept the principles for which Roosevelt and Taft speak, but it will never accept Bradley, Hunter, Todd, Deboe and Mathews as their political leaders.

DEEP CREEK.

It is stated that the farmers here are not going to raise a tobacco crop this year, yet the situation near the woods looks more like they are contrary to the so stated fact for smokers and grubbing are seen here and there. They say as they can't have tobacco to sell to get some pay for their summer's labor on the farm they are going to make corn answer for it.

A good neighbor was down at the home of your correspondent one day last week and said that she would be most pleased if I would just state through my next letter what her neighbors were doing over on "Middle Pong." She said they were all picking carpet rags, going to turkey nests out in the fields and cleaning up for spring, while the little ones were eagerly hunting up hen eggs so they could have a big share of them on Easter.

During the past week there have been several of our neighbors that had to take to the house for several days owing to sickness. At this time of year there is hardly anyone found that enjoys an all day lay in the beds or stay in the house. Spring time is the demanding out door work for those who have crops and gardens to raise, and all in this line of business dare not miss all the good opportunities it gives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ida Elliott had as their guests last Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Creed Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Elliott, all of Boyle county.

Mrs. John H. Elliott, Sr., and little Red T. Carpenter, who have been quite sick throughout this week, we are glad to report much better, and hope that in a few days they will be out enjoying these lovely spring days with us.

While other schools have opened their doors and begun school, ours remains closed at present, but as the talk goes the door won't remain closed long, and then the cry of happy school girls and boys will be heard on their way to where they are to obtain better knowledge of the world and what is in it.

There is a rumor here that the young ladies will have a May day on the first day of May. The Queen for the day is not chosen yet, but if the report is true they will have to set up the pole and practice running around it and choose their Queen a few days before the occasion takes place. One young lady says nothing would be more pleasant than to have this come out all true.

CHESTNUT DARE!

CHESTNUT DARE is a Large, Handsome Saddle and Harness Horse with Style, Bone, Substance, Finish and Conformation.

He combines the blood of the Great Chester Dare and the renowned Chief Family. His sire is Chester Dare 10, and his dam by Red Chief, by Clark Chief, the sire of Harrison Chief, the grandsire of the great Montgomery Chief and Bourbon King.

A test of breeding qualities of a horse is the sale and show ring. As to the sale ring he sired the highest priced lot of colts ever sold in Washington county. As to the show ring, not one of his colts of four seasons have ever been defeated by the colts of any horse owned or farmed in county. They won every the blue and red (eight in all) given by the Washington County Fair Association at our last fair. His yearlings won six of the eight ribbons tied in full rings. He sired the winning two-year-old and the 2nd premium three-year-old harness mares in rings of seven entries; while he was shown only twice in saddle and harness rings of eight entries and won easily. Mr. Allen who was selected by the Fair Company, and considered a fair and impartial Judge said his colts of eighteen entries had more style and finish than any lot of colts he ever saw in one ring. A comparison of his rings of colts to those of other horses at our own Fair and other County and State Fairs, I ask the breeders to please notice and consider before breeding elsewhere. He not only produces sellers at weanlings, but sellers and show horses as they advance in age. I again solicit the patronage of all owners of good mares in this and adjoining counties.

This horse will make the present season at my place near Springfield at

Protests Against Pardons.

Frankfort, Ky., April 17.—The hearing of the argument in the Powers-Howard pardon cases was resumed at 11:30 this morning, and the feature of the day was a thirty-minute talk by Arthur Goebel, protesting against the granting of the pardons.

Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin spoke for nearly three hours, quoting frequently from the testimony, and he was followed by W. C. Owens, who closes for the petitioners. He spoke for an hour and will conclude his speech to-morrow.

When the hearing was resumed at 11:30 Arthur Goebel was the first speaker.

Mr. Goebel said that he desired to protest against the pardon of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers. He referred to the efforts of the defense to protect Henry Youtsey in the first trial of Powers, and yet, after he had confessed to flood him with charges in the following ones. He denied that it had ever been the purpose of the Commonwealth to defend Youtsey. It had always prosecuted him.

"It is a disgrace to the State that Youtsey has not been hanged, and also that the other two have not been hanged," Mr. Goebel spoke earnestly and freely without passion and with the ease of a practiced speaker. He took up the testimony of the new witnesses introduced at the last trial of Powers, dissecting their evidence carefully with the skill of the most finished criminal attorney. The large crowd in the hall listened breathlessly to every word of the brother of the murdered man.

Mr. Goebel said that in reference to the testimony of Col. Scott, which had not been given and had been referred to by the defense attorneys, he had gone to Col. Scott after his (Scott's) conference with Youtsey and asked him directly and man to man if Youtsey admitted that he had fired the shot that killed William Goebel. He said that Col. Scott had told him that Youtsey told him that he did not.

Mr. Goebel closed his appeal to the Governor with a peroration so eloquent and pathetic that it brought tears to the eyes of many. He said:

"I protest against the pardon of Jim Howard and Caleb Powers. I refer you to the record in their cases and all kindred cases. I ask you to make an analytical and comparative study of the evidence of every witness who has appeared at every trial, so that the capability and the interest of every witness to tell the truth may be judged.

"The best criterion is not what I or they may say, but the evidence itself. The record shows that Powers is as guilty as can be. The world knows he is guilty. For eight long years I have assisted the Commonwealth in this battle. I have done nothing that was not strictly in conformance with the law. I ask you to let the law take its course. "There are those, many in number, and many have said it to me, that even though Powers is guilty, he has suffered enough and should be pardoned. That is mercy. If this is to be a question of mercy, I ask you to listen to the requiem of the winds which chant over the grave of William Goebel and to consider that his life and liberty were as dear to him as theirs is to them."

There was silence throughout the hall for a half minute. Mr. Goebel turned and walked out.

Gov. Wilson then called upon Mr. Franklin to present his argument for the Commonwealth.

BELIEVE NIGHT RIDER WAS SHOT IN HEAD

Samson Tomlin Opened Fire On Mob in Pendleton County.

Cincinnati, April 19.—Residents in and around Butler, Ky., believe that at least one man was killed in the raid of Samson Tomlin, of Pineville, Ky., Tuesday evening. About 200 men rode up to the home of Tomlin and demanded that he scrape his beds. He opened fire.

Persons in the neighborhood say that at least 200 shots were fired. The riders rode on away without doing any damage to the crib. A doctor who was riding by at the time of the disturbance asserts that he saw one man shot through the head and several more appeared to be injured. The body of the man killed was put in a buggy and hauled away. The doctor said to-day that he was unable to identify any of the riders, as they appeared to be strangers to him, and from the condition of their horses they had ridden a great distance.

The Lamp Went Out.

Harrisburg Herald: Last Wednesday night Mrs. Harvey Terhune had occasion to go up stairs at her home, and carried a large lamp which had just been filled with oil for the night. In some way she tripped and fell on coming down the stairway, falling and rolling down to the floor in the room, severely cutting her head by coming in contact with a bureau, breaking the lamp and saturating her clothing with the oil, but fortunately the blaze was extinguished by the falling of the lamp, and the oil did not take fire, which no doubt would have resulted seriously, if not fatally, to Mrs. Terhune.

WINS MILL FROM FATHER.

Young Woman Victor in Business Struggle—Boss of 150 Hands.

Forest, O.—Boss of 150 mill hands and sole chief of a $150,000 company is the height to which Lizzie Dickelman climbed by beating her father in a business fight for possession of the plant.

The clash grew out of an attempt to make the company more of a family affair than it had been for some years through the young woman's association with her father.

She had earned a half interest in the $175,000 Dickelman Steel Roofing company, both by expert knowledge of the mill end of the business and by sales ability.

For several years, under her guidance, a profit of $45,000 a year had been earned. Then the father, Joseph L. Dickelman, thought to give a share in the business to his son Lawrence and to his son-in-law, Miss Dickelman objected.

Unable to settle the difference on this point, father and daughter agreed to throw the company into a receivership.

When it was offered for sale by the receiver the young woman startled the town by bidding up to $180,000 against her father. They were the only bidders, and the parent won at the auction, topping her final offer by $600.

But he could not raise the $180,000 to pay for the business, and the daughter got it for $165,000.

She is now in a position to give her father a job. He has accepted defeat gracefully, and his home continues to be hers.

SHOES LAST THIRTY YEARS.

Not Nearly Worn Out, Says the Proud Owner.

Darby, Pa.—Shoemakers would stare if all shoes were like the pair that Robert Green of Main street has been wearing for 30 years, and which he had made from the skin of a calf that he killed.

"It was the finest calf I had ever seen as a butcher," said Green; "only nine weeks old and yet it weighed 35 pounds. Harry P. Singles and I were associated in the butcher business at the time, and when we bought the calf for $12 we determined to kill it and make two pairs of boots and two pairs of shoes each out of the hide, which was the finest we had ever seen. You couldn't kill a calf 20 years ago in the morning and have the skin converted into shoes by nightfall, for there were no chemical processes then as now. The skin had to be oak tanned and it was 12 months before we got our skin from the tanner. It weighed 35 pounds green and only 11 pounds tanned, but it was a beauty."

"We gave the skin to a boot-maker and we each got a pair of boots and a pair of shoes out of his hide. We were considered dandies with our calf-skin boots and shoes in those days, and we often boasted of having killed the original owner of the skin from which we made our footwear."

"I wore out the boots, but I have been wearing the shoes now for 30 years—not constantly, but giving them good service, and there is many years' service in them yet. The shoes cost me four dollars to have made."

FIND MYSTERY IN OLD CLOCK.

Always Strikes One Before Death of Any of the Family.

Richmond, Ky.—The old-fashioned P. Crook, aged 70 years, of Kingston, "grandfather's" clock owned by Ben which has not run for a quarter of a century, has mysteriously struck just before a death invaded the family for the past 16 years. The story is told by Hon. R. H. Crook, county attorney.

Mr. Crook says that the "old clock was but an ornament for the parlor, yet a few days prior to the death of his brother, William Crook, in 1891, the timepiece chimed out the hour of one. Three years later their mother passed away, and just before this sad event the old clock again struck one. Ten years later, about 1904, the ancient timepiece chimed two, and within a week the little twins of Mr. Crook's sister, Mrs. Collins Yates, died the same day.

Last week while Miss Margaret Crook was watching by the bedside of her stepmother, she was startled by the sound of the long-silent old clock as it pealed its fateful note one, and within five days death had claimed another victim from the Crook household.

There is no explanation. The clock has not been wound for years. No one is superstitious in the Crook home. It is a mystery, that is all.

DRAW STRAWS FOR HUSBAND.

Winning Girl Writes to Californian Who Wants Delaware Wife.

Georgetown, Del.—Receiving a letter from one William Hanford of San Francisco, who described himself as 23 years old, and possessed of no bad habits, asking that a good-looking wife who had $2,000 be found for him, Postmaster Walls, fearing that he was not equal to the occasion, inserted the letter in a local paper.

The other day two well-known ladies, both of whom are as yet heart whole, laughingly drew straws to see which should write to the Californian. The lucky one, a fair-haired miss who is employed in a local store, at once answered the letter, and is now anxiously awaiting reply. Although she does not possess the $2,000 cash, she holds the title to two fine farms and feels that, if the worst came to the worst, they would support a hard-working husband.

HENRY CLAY FRICK.

Boys Who Make Good.

Harrisburg Herald: The young man whose pockets are filled with cigarette wrappers, mustache combs, fine nail cleaners, looking glasses, etc., and have their mothers crouch their pants daily, are not the ones who will make promising husbands. The pockets of those boys who are helping to make the country bloom and causing two blades of grass to grow where God planted but one will be found filled with barbed wire staples and different sizes of nails and screws. They are the boys who make this country.

Chickens Stolen.

Lebanon Enterprise: The hen house of Mr. George Luckett, in the Pope's creek neighborhood, was raided one night last week by chicken thieves and thirteen fine fowls stolen. In view of the fact that the stealing of a chicken is now a penitentiary offense, the thief who took these thirteen fine fowls from Mr. Luckett's henhouse without his permission, would do well to take to the tall timber.

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy."

Mrs. W. L. BURCK,
Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.

Will Distribute Money Soon.

Harrodsburg Democrat: Prof. J. D. Clark, secretary of the Fayette county branch of the Society of Equity, announced Saturday that checks would be sent out in a few days, dividing among the growers the money which has been received for the pooled tobacco sold thus far by the executive committee. Prof. Clark stated that at the recent meeting of the executive committee at Winchester it was decided to distribute this money among the growers whose tobacco had been sold, and that as soon as blank checks could be printed the distribution would begin. Prof. Clark denied emphatically that there is any intention on the part of the executive committee to convert ten per cent. of the sales, and said:

"This ten per cent. is only held back as a reserve fund to assist those growers whose tobacco for any cause is not sold, and when the pooled tobacco is all sold it will be prorated among those to whom it belongs."

Secretary Clark further explained that the society, by a recent decision of the executive committee, had voted to retain ten per cent. of all of a certain grade of tobacco and twenty-five per cent. of all of another grade as a reserve fund, and that was how the report of a ten per cent. assessment for current expenses got fixed in the public mind.

"When all of the first grade of tobacco in the pool is sold," said Secretary Clark, "the grower will receive ninety per cent. of the sale price, while the society will retain ten per cent. as indicated. When all of the second grade in the pool is sold the grower will receive seventy-five per cent. of the sale price, while the society will retain twenty-five per cent. The per cent. held back is a reserve fund for the growers, and not a cent of it will be equandered or go to the society, but will be paid to the growers according to their pro rata when all the tobacco in the pool is sold. It is on the same principle that a bank has a reserve fund for emergency." To the Democrat, Chairman Glover Kyle, of the Mercer County Board, said yesterday that the money derived from sales of tobacco from this county would be distributed within the next few days. He said he was not certain as to exactly how much Mercer tobacco had been sold, but that about two hundred hogheads had been sampled out up to Monday. He said that about twenty thousand dollars would be sent to the Harrodsburg banks within the next few days for distribution among the growers. Mr. Kyle reiterated Prof. Clark's statement as to the purpose of the ten per cent. hold-out.

Court Items.

Marion Falcon: Will Lancaster, Harrison Buckner, Stans. Smith, Ed Crady, Len Abell and Herman Spaulding, all colored, evidently possessed of the idea that they could sing, attempted a few comic opera stunts on Harrison street Monday night, with they termed "ceradin." The neighbors misunderstanding the sounds, Officer Hagan arrested them. Tuesday they were fined $4.00 each.

Tuesday afternoon Henry Brussels was tried for selling whiskey in local option territory. The defendant by attorney demanded a jury. Mr. J. A. Hourigan testified that he bought a quart of whiskey from Brussels Saturday, giving him a check for $1.00. He borrowed thirty cents from Officer Hagan, who was formerly a neighbor of his in the country, and took up his check, but later "young Bruss" returned his money, he keeping the whiskey. Officers Hagan and Hancock stated in their presence that Brussels had said in their presence that he "had sold the whiskey to Hourigan, now get the proof." Brussels testified that he was drunk, and had sold the whiskey to Hourigan, but overheard Officer Hagan talking with George Clements about it "I got wise and gave Jim his money back." The Jury hung and the case will be tried again.

Harvey McElroy, a colored man from Bradfordsville about 65 years old, was presented in court Wednesday morning charged with selling whiskey in local option territory. A case was made against him, and he declined to testify. Owing to his age and circumstances in the case the court assessed the lowest fine, $60.

Gloomy For Farmers.

Carlisle, Ky., April 20.—Things are beginning to look a little gloomy for the farmers in this section, who have made arrangements to cultivate their lands the coming season. There has been so much rainfall thus far this spring that, with the possible exception of a few days in March, the ground has been entirely too wet to plow, and it is now getting late to break land for crops this season. Consequently, it is claimed, very little land has been prepared for crops and comparatively no planting has been done. The tobacco crop will be cut out of Nicholas county entirely this season. It is claimed that there is not a single plant bed in the county. It is said that all persons who had prepared tobacco plant beds in this county tore them up after the killing of Hedges. Naturally, therefore, the farmers of this county contemplated putting in a large acreage of corn and set about to make preparations, but the wet weather has hindered them greatly.

There is a large acreage of wheat in Nicholas county this year, and the prospects were never more promising for a large yield. Bluegrass is finer now than was ever known at this time of year, and unless there is yet a killing freeze, Nicholas county will have the largest crop of fruit of all kinds that she has produced in years.

BOOKER.

Sues For $7,000 Damages.

Lebanon Enterprise: Lou Miles, admrx. of the estate of George Miles, the negro who was killed in the railroad yards here sometime ago by being crushed under a switch engine, has filed suit in the circuit court against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co., for $7,000 damages. Miles was about 65 years of age, and has been in the service of the company the greater part of his life as a section laborer. He met death, the petition recites, while in the discharge of his duties.

Thief Wounded.

Harrodsburg Herald: A chicken thief met with a very warm reception at the home of Col. Ike Scott in this city Monday night. About 12 o'clock the family heard a commotion at the hen house when Harvey, the elder son of Colonel Scott, went out, finding the hen house door open and a man standing some distance away, down the garden fence, with chickens in his hands, he fired four times with a shot gun, having re-loaded. That the thief was wounded is evident, as on the next morning at the spot where he was standing when young Scott fired on him, a pool of blood was found.

THE VIOLIN'S ANSWER

By C. F. STERLING

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

O daughters of dreams and of stories that life is not weary of yet. Faustine, Fragolita, Dolores, Felle, and Yolande, and Juliette:

The fragment kept repeating itself in musical cadence as Olney Beaumont sat before his open hardwood fire.

Yolande? Juliette? No, those were not the names. They were Helen, and Louise, and Ethel, and Marie, and Edna.

Daughters of dreams? Rather were they the mothers of dreams, for each in turn had given birth to visions and fantasies until, in the inconsequent manner of dreams, one picture had displaced the other, but they were all shadowy phantoms brought up from the depths of memory.

But how clear they were on this late December afternoon, with the wind swirling the snow against the window panes, as he sat gazing on the blazing logs just ready to fall into glowing coals.

Yes, he could call them all up to-day; some forgotten for years, but now, by some subtle necromancy, as vivid as when in his boyhood, his pulses had bounded more quickly, and a delicious thrill had shot through him at the touch of soft hands, the fragrance from shining hair, the tantalizing temptation of red lips.

There was Helen, the first girl he had ever loved, fair, plump, white-skinned, luxurious; but she had proven mercenary, and the seductions of wealth, more alluring than himself, had married a man old enough to be her father.

Then there was Ethel, delicate, fragile, spirituelle, dainty as a flower. Poor Ethel! She sleeps in the little cemetery just under the hill, where the sunlight loves to linger and the first violets peep in the spring.

And Marie! Tall, slender, supple, with eyes like those and a mass of raven hair. Once he had seen it loosened and she had seemed veiled in mystic midnight; but, alas! Marie had a temper.

Once he had inadvertently overheard her berating her mother and sister, when something had gone wrong, and the magic glamor that had enveloped her had vanished like mist before the sun.

And so with each but one—Edna. Yes, he had loved Edna well. Had loved! He had never ceased to love her, and that was why, at thirty-five, he sat alone in his bachelor rooms calling up the visions of the past.

What a fool he had been! Why had he allowed his silly jealousy to get the mastery and make him say things he would have bitten his tongue through sooner than have said in his cooler moments?

And she? Too proud to deny, too gentle to answer back, too brave to show her hurt, she had simply looked at him and turned away. And he had flung at her like a melodramatic actor, "I'll show you you cannot play fast and loose with me." But the look stayed with him, and by degrees he read its meaning, read it when too late, the reproach, the sense of injustice, the injured pride, and, oh! the after-bitterness, as later he could see through it all her yearning love.

Cooler the next day, he determined to be magnanimous and forgive her, apologizing for his words, but not for the thought that prompted them; but when he went in the evening she had gone, gone to visit an aunt in New York, who he knew had not liked him because his contemplated marriage would cut short the musical career she had planned for the girl.

The maid handed him a packet which she said she had been told to deliver to him. When he opened it later he found his love tokens and two words penciled on a card, "Good-by."

And that was seven years ago. No reply had come to his letters sent to New York, and when he was finally able to go in person he found that Mrs. Arlington had gone abroad and taken Edna with her.

So, in despair he had made application for the position of medical botanist to an expedition going up the Amazon, and was accepted. His work proved so satisfactory that he was requested to undertake a further commission on the Pacific side, and after a few days in New York again found himself in South American woods and jungles, from whence he had but recently returned, and was now dreaming before the open fire on this gloomy December day.

He roused himself with a start. Faber! What was that? Couldn't he rid himself of the longing for that one face? He had learned before his departure that his jealous suspicion was baseless, but too late to make amends for his unjust accusation, and her look as she turned from him never ceased to haunt him.

On the bosom of the mighty river, in the depths of the tropical forest, at night in camp with his Indian guides, he saw it, but to-day it was more vivid and persistent than ever. She seemed so near, so close. Once during his reverie he almost felt her presence, and reached his arms with a start, calling, "Edna!" But there was only the glowing coals and the flickering shadows.

He looked at his watch and saw that it was seven o'clock, then, turning on the light, he scanned the paper for the evening's entertainments. The notice of a concert announcing the debut of a new woman violinist, a Mile.

Edneri, attracted his attention, and he decided to attend.

The hall was but moderately filled and he had no difficulty in securing a good seat. The preliminary numbers were of little interest or merit, and he determined to depart as soon as the artist had rendered her first selection, so, settling himself anew, he waited her entrance.

As she came on the stage, escorted by the conductor, his heart seemed to stop, then leaped into action, sending hammering throbs through his brain. It was Edna. A faint applause greeted her, which she acknowledged with a slight inclination, then drew her bow across the strings.

The three numbers for her first selection were a Paganini, an Ole Bull and an Ysaie, designed more to show technical proficiency than artistic feeling, which the audience, made up largely of musicians, recognized with cordial appreciation.

"Handsome woman, handles herself well, good execution. Probably will take, but I want to hear the later numbers before I can decide whether she is an artist or not," remarked a gentleman sitting near Beaumont to his companion, and Beaumont felt an unreasonable irritation at the man's critical coolness. He left his seat, found an usher and, writing a few words on his card, requested that it be taken to Mile. Edneri. The usher returned with the reply that mademoiselle begged to be excused that evening, but that she would receive Mr. Beaumont the following day at the address given.

He resented himself and waited impatiently for her second appearance. The last number was from Paganini, an exquisite bit, and rendered with a delicacy of touch and tenderness of feeling that moved the critic to say, "She's an artist all right; still, I'd like to hear something that would tell me whether her heart plays as well as her brain."

The applause was generous and prolonged, and continued until her re-appearance for the encore. Beaumont, his senses keyed to preternatural acuteness, was instantly conscious of some magnetic change. Some telepathic message seemed to leap from her to him, as, glancing rapidly over the house, her eyes rested on him a moment, then were lowered to her instrument. Even the audience seemed to feel a subtle tension and subsided into hushed expectation.

The first notes were soft, delicate and tremulous, like the wavering light of dawn, day, or a maiden's shy awakening to her womanhood. Then they took on a fuller and surer tone, gathering confidence and joy with faster tempo in the assurance of larger and wider life. Again they softened, lower and lower, till almost inaudible, with little bursts of melody interposed, as if of a maiden listening to the first stirrings of love with its doubts and fears and gleams of joy and hope; then broader and deeper and richer in the confidence and knowledge of love given and returned, flowing on in full, rich harmonic melody and measured rhythm, until suddenly interrupted by crashing discords. A pause, then a low, throbbing, inarticulate wail, as if of a soul in travail, gradually merging into a broad, dignified movement, as if that soul had fought its struggle and found resignation and peace.

Again a pause, and then a gentle, tender movement of exquisite sweetness and delicacy, widening and deepening as the bow swept the strings into a hymn of thanksgiving, increasing into a burst of melodic joy and happiness, ending with a paeon of triumph.

"Heart!" said the critic who had spoken before, "that woman has told her life. Some man broke her heart. She fought it out to tranquility. Then love came again, or reconciliation, I don't know which, but love is triumphant," and Beaumont knew that his longing and waiting were ended.

Of Two Evils, Etc.

One afternoon Mrs. Murphy appeared at the settlement house, all dressed up in her best bonnet and shawl. A huge black and blue spot disfigured the side of her face, however, and one eye was nearly closed. "Why, Mrs. Murphy, what is the matter?" cried one of the teachers; and then, realizing that she might have asked a tactless question, she hastily asked it off by saying: "Well, cheer up, you might be worse off." "Sure, I might," responded the indignant Mrs. Murphy. "I might not be married at all!"

Why He Was Suspicious.

"There is something suspicious about that," remarked the young man named Brown, as he hung up the telephone receiver.

About what?

"Why, I just called up the home of a girl who has led me to believe that I am the warm favorite and that there are no others on her list. She wasn't at home, so the party who answered the ring said, but it gave me a far when she added: 'Shall I tell her you called, Mr. White?'"

Screened.

They sat in the dim parlor. "One kiss," he pleaded. "Nonsense!" exclaimed the pretty girl in a teasing mood. "Some one might see us."

Who?

"Who? The clock, for instance. That has a face."

"Yes, but that clock is as considerate as the moon that goes under a cloud. It keeps its face covered with its hands."

Grave Enough.

"Where is the center of gravity, pa?"

"An Englishman, if there's one in the crowd."—Judge.

The United States Government Reports Favorably!

The principal newspapers in Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio will publish this week the startling information that a 260-acre apparently worthless hill in Kentucky has been found and proven to be one of the richest pieces of ground on the face of the earth. This 260 acres contains a horizontal nine and one half foot ledge of the most valuable rock in existence.

The government representative who visited the property, in his report, issued by the United States Geological Survey, made the startling statement that there are but two ledges of rock like it in the world; one in Bavaria, which has been supplying millions of dollars' worth of the product annually to lithographic printing presses in every civilized nation on the globe, the other in Kentucky. The hill is estimated to be worth into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Think of it! One acre of the ground of the 9½ foot ledge of lithographic stone at the average selling price per pound would bring more money than an acre of wheat would yield by harvesting a crop every year for two hundred thousand years.

A Simple Proposition After All.

Products that are rare and high priced are so because of their scarcity. It is difficult to believe that rock in any form, especially when found in a ledge so tremendous in area that it will take 500 years to exhaust, sells from 11 to 50 cents per pound, but such is a fact and is only explainable because there exist but two quarries in the world. Such is the statement of the United States Geological Survey. This find will make its owners multi-millionaires, will enrich the corporation and pay dividends from 80 to 500 per cent. to its stockholders. Fortunately for readers of this paper the property is near by in Kentucky and its stock is offered to the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Money is Difficult to Make.

Money can not be made easily. It requires effort, experience, skill, industry, but with this discovery and the consequent development there comes the opportunity for one to make money easily. A small investment of a few hundred dollars will earn sufficient to keep a family in comfort. This can be readily understood when the fact is known that there are 692 lithographic houses in the United States importing annually from Bavaria a total of $2,900,000 worth of this wonderful rock, which costs Bavaria quarrymen less than $300,000 to quarry and market. As a proof of this: The government and community interests in Bavaria in addition to the profits made by the quarrymen who leased the quarries, have been paid up to this time nearly sixty million dollars royalty. It is very simple, as the rock can be quarried as easily as building stone. It is then sawed in slabs 4 inches thick, ranging in size from 12 inches x 14 inches to 44 inches x 64 inches. These slabs market at from $3.00 to $500.00 each, according to size; fifty times the value of ordinary stone; fifteen to twenty times more valuable than marble or onyx.

We Have Undeniable Proofs.

Months were consumed after the discovery in opening up the quarry, taking out the rock, preparing it, furnishing it to expert lithographers, designers, engravers, transferers, and submitting it to every test, with a rendered verdict that it is not only equal to the best imported stone, but superior to a majority of the product being imported from Bavaria. Another thing, the Bavarian quarries are almost exhausted, which will leave this corporation in possession of the world as a market, with possible dividends of from 80 to 500 per cent.

To Give One an Idea--A Plain Illustration:

We could furnish fifteen out of the 692 Lithographic houses in the United States alone and pay 20 per cent., but the entire 692 are ready to take our product. South America, Canada, the entire Continent, will require of us their supply. Europe also.

The Character of The Proofs.

Would you question the Government's statement on a $20.00 note that it is worth $20.00? This wonderful property has the same stamp of certainty and approval. In addition, the most experienced quarrymen in Kentucky report positively as to the find. Again, representatives of the leading importers of the product from New York have visited the quarry, examined its character and extent, pronounced the product superior and are anxious for this company to reach the position where we can furnish them their supplies. Again, we have letters written by experts, the skilled workmen who have spent their lives in engraving upon and transferring upon lithographic stone in all varieties of the highest class commercial and art printing. Their verdict is the same. All of this testimony can be secured, all of these proofs will be submitted and the opportunity given you to share in the tremendous profits that every citizen must enjoy who take advantage of this offer. Capital is needed with which to purchase the large plant necessary to turn out at the start the 12,000,000 or 15,000,000 pounds demanded by the United States.

The first 100,000 shares, par value $1.00 a share, will be offered and sold to the first inquirers at a low figure. POSITIVELY after the first 100,000 shares are sold the remaining shares necessary to be sold will be marketed at not less than par or $1.00 per share. The opportunity is open to you.

The foregoing facts are almost unbelievable, but we are talking about something of easy solution and easily admissible of proof.

Based upon the minimum earnings of dividends, subscribers to any part of the first 100,000 shares will secure the stock at one-half its par value, therefore $10.00 will buy 20 shares, which will upon minimum estimated earnings pay $10 annually and the stock one year after plant is in operation should be worth $160.

$25.00 will buy 50 shares and should earn $40 annually; stock should be worth one year after plant is in operation $400.00.

$50.00 will buy 100 shares and should earn $80 annually; stock should be worth one year after plant is in operation $800.00.

$100.00 will buy 200 shares and should earn $160 annually; stock should be worth one year after plant is in operation $1,600.

$500.00 will buy 1,000 shares and should earn $800 annually; stock should be worth one year after production begins $8,000.

$1,000 will buy 2,000 shares and should earn $1,600 annually; stock should be worth one year after production begins $16,000.00.

Jesus Teaches Humility

Sunday School Lesson for April 26, 1908
Specially Prepared for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—John 13:1-20. Memory Verse.—Ps. 138:6. GOLDEN TEXT.—"A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another as I have loved you."—John 13:34.

TIME.—Thursday evening, April 6, A. D. 33. Nisan 12, the day before the Passover meal. The evening before his crucifixion. His last meeting with his disciples. Institution of the Lord's Supper.

PLACE.—An upper room in Jerusalem. Comment and Suggestive Thought.

"Arnold of Rugby" called Christ's washing of his disciples' feet the most remarkable of his deeds. This is a lesson of the strongest possible contrast. We are to see Christ's majesty at its highest point of earthly glory, and his humility at its lowliest. The first picture gives the church a proud sense of its coming triumph in the world; the second reminds the church that it triumphs only through its loving, tender ministries to men. The first picture teaches us personally that if we serve Christ we have at our disposal infinite resources of power and authority; the second, that we must use those resources meekly, in serving others.

Christ fulfilled promptly his promise to Peter of an explanation. This explanation is in two parts. The first is a statement of his own supremacy, that he was Master and Lord. "One of you calls me the Teacher; another, the Lord."—Bishop Middleton. Responding to which the followers were disciples or servants.—Professor Vincent. "There was no title so lofty, no honor so exalted, no devotion so absolute, that Christ rejected it at the hands of men."—Rev. J. Ritchie Smith.

The second part of the explanation was that Christ's deed was given as an example. It "was saying in the language of action that the Son of man came not to be ministered unto but to minister, and that the law of his kingdom was the law of helpfulness (Mark 10:43-45)."—Professor Gilbert. Certainly no one of them would claim to be greater than Christ. They were servants, he was their confessed Lord. They were apostles, "men sent" (v. 16); he was the sovereign that sent them forth. Surely, therefore, if he had washed their feet, they also ought to wash one another's feet. "By this great object lesson Christ taught the apostles, and his disciples throughout all time, that, the noblest end of man's endeavor is loving service."—Prof. Noah K. Davis, Ph. D. "Now let man blush to be proud, for whom God is become humble."—St. Augustine.

Christ intended his commandment to be taken literally when necessary. But, now that shoes have taken the place of sandals, it is to be observed in the spirit rather than the letter. Christ did not institute a rite, such as that celebrated in Rome on Thursday in Holy Week, when the pope "washes the feet of a few aged paupers, after due private preparation, in the presence of the proudest rank." "It used to be practiced by European sovereigns on Maundy Thursday, James II. being the last who did so."—Century Bible.

The spirit of the commandment is to be observed. 1. By the performance of lowly and disagreeable physical service for others, when necessary. Those that nurse the sick, care for the aged and helpless, or work among the degraded or the very poor, are often called to deeds like foot-washing. "The noblest form of help is to help men to get rid of their sin."—Alexander MacLaren. That is the cleansing we all need most. "To wash one another's feet is, in the deeper meaning of the thing, to help one another out of the evil that is in the world, to aid one another in the keeping of a pure conscience and of a wholesome and holy life."—I. Marshall Lang, D. D. "We sometimes talk of the language of the hands. And sometimes of the language of the eyes. But I think there is also a language of the feet, and I could translate the whole Gospel into it. For first comes Jesus (when we are bowed with sin), and he says: 'Son of man, stand upon thy feet.' And then comes Jesus (when we wish to serve him), and he says: 'Wash one another's feet.' And then in the morning, when we are his forever, it is at his feet we shall cast our crowns."—Rev. G. H. Morrison.

Those that are superior in one way should remember that every one may be superior in some way. "Arnold of Rugby" called attention to the pronoun in "wash one another's feet." Rich and poor, high and low, learned and ignorant, are, he declared, "members one of another, not two distinct castes." Each can help the other, teach the other.

The Lessons for Servants.—Many Christians are rulers, but all Christians are servants. The minister of a church is the one who ministers to its needs. The prime minister is the head servant of the state.

Let us not be satisfied with our service all it springs from love, and not merely from a sense of duty. Humility must know itself to be humble, must be unconscious. "Some one had just been reminding a certain bishop of an act of goodness which he had performed. He said: 'Any good I have ever been able to do is of the unlearned mercy of God.' That is true humility. We feel that the merit is not ours, but God's."—Rev. R. J. Campbell.

True service goes where it is needed, and often our enemies need us far more than our friends.

SEEING BY EYES' OWN LIGHT.

Miner's Experience One He Does Not Care to Duplicate.

"I used to see in the dark by the light of my own eyes," said a miner. "The power was a disease, but not a bad disease for miners to have in this country, where the mines are not looked after as carefully as they would be if their owners worked in them themselves."

"I once was entombed two weeks in a mine. It is a common enough occurrence with us American miners. I wouldn't speak of it but for the eye disease it gave me."

"You see, after I had been entombed a week—I lived on dead horse—I suddenly found that I could make out everything about me. The walls, the corpses, the feeding rats—yes, I could see."

"And I continued to see in the dark. I could read in the dark for over a year. I went around exhibiting myself to doctors. I had a disease called lucifuga. The fundi of my eyes—whatever fundi are—had become excessively luminous. Little lamps, they illuminated the night, casting clear yellow rays, pencils of golden light, this way and that, according as I turned them."

"But they hurt. They hurt like the very old Harry. I was glad when a great Chicago specialist put out those two extraordinary lights of mine. The specialist said lots of people who stay overmuch in a dark place get lucifuga."

FOUND WANTING AS A LOVER.

Young Man Not the Type to Suit Sweetheart's Mother.

A sharp-featured, determined little woman popped her head out of the door and indignantly demanded the reason for the late hour. The young man, who had been hanging around the house for hours in a pitiless downpour of rain, hoping against hope that his adored would invite him in.

"Now, then, young fellow, what do you want here? Tryin' to wear the pavement out, or what?" she demanded, sarcastically.

"I reckon I've come a-courtin' your daughter," the shame-faced youth admitted.

"Oh, ye're after Lizzie, are yer? Then take my advice, young man, an' run away an' lose yerself. My gal ain't goin' to marry a chap that ain't got courage to knock at the door an' ax for her—not likely! Why, when my husband came a-courtin' me and found the door locked he climbed the back-yard wall, strangled the bulldog an' knocked the old man silly w' a clump on the jaw. Then he grabbed hold of my hand and shoved a ring as big as a cartwheel on my finger and told me that the beans were published last Sunday. That's the sort of husband I want for our Lizzie—not a shiverin' milkop that ain't got sense to come in out of the rain!"—Tit-Bits.

A Candid Admission. "I met in Japan an Englishman, an F. R. G. S., who was searching for a certain lost island," said Mr. Bryan, in recounting experiences of his trip around the world. "This island had been reported from time to time by various vessels, but always in a slightly different location. The theory of the scientist was that the island did not move, as was generally believed, but might have some peculiar magnetic property which affected the ships' instruments."

"Isn't it astonishing," the scientist remarked, "how an island as large as that can be utterly lost in seas traversed as much as these?"

"How large is it?" I asked.

"About two miles across."

"Well, I don't call that remarkable," I said, recalling my campaigns. "I myself have lost areas larger than that—a great deal larger!"—The Circle.

"Improving the Breed of Horses." Among the vast number of letters received by Gov. Hughes on the subject of racetrack gambling the following is charged with pathos:

"To the Governor.—My husband gambles at the racetrack. We had 11 children once, but there are only four left. The others died because I could not give them care. My husband's gambling forced me to leave them and go out to work."

Evidently this misguided woman does not appreciate her husband's services in the cause of improving horseflesh.—Rochester Post-Express.

Locating Sunken Submarines. To lessen risk of loss of submarines, torpedoes used in naval practice and other objects liable to sink in the sea, a French oceanographer attaches a vessel of oil having a long and short tube one-tenth of an inch in diameter. When submerged the tube rises from the seal of the tube, oil rises from the long one drop by drop, locating the sunken object by the film on the water's surface.

Getting Along. Miss Goodley—Miss Hussie goes in for everything. She's constantly doing something.

Miss Knox—Yes, but the one thing she is doing most steadily she won't admit.

Miss Goodley—What's that?

Miss Knox—Growing older.—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Cleared Out. "De boss give me a clearing house check."

"For how much?"

"For none." It was me walking pa pers.—Detroit Free Press.

1908 SEASON

FLOATER NO. 8315

Standard and registered under rule 6, vol. 6, Wallace's Stud Book. By Florida 482, he by Hambletonian 10, out of Volunteer Maid, by Volunteer 55, a son of Hambletonian 10.

1st dam Mary, by Star Almont 6673, a full brother to Almont Jr., 1829, Allie Gains 2380 and Fiedmont 5050, all of them producers. Dam of Star Almont, the founder of the great Morgan family. Star Almont was by Almont 33, he by Abdallah 15, dam by Membrino Chief 11, 2nd dam by Pilot Jr., 12.

2nd dam of Floater was by Peck's Idol 177, he by Membrino Chief 11, and out of a thoroughbred mare, by American Eclipse, 3rd dam a thoroughbred mare by Sir Archy, 4, 5 and 6 dams thoroughbreds.

Floater is a handsome bay, 16 hands high, good disposition and a sure foot getter of large handsome colts and very promising ones. His oldest colts in this county are just two years old, but they are fine style and action and good doers.

STONEWALL

A Black Gov. Wood Jack has proved himself by his colts in 1906. Fifteen of his males sold for an average of $96 50 per head, and in 1907 ten of them brought their owners $1,000. These are facts, not hot-air statements. He gets more high-price males than any jack in the county.

TERMS.—Floater $12 to insure a living colt. Stonewall, $8 for horse and $10 for mare mule.

Mares traded or paid with or bred elsewhere (without permission) forfeit insurance, and money due at once. A lien retained on all colts until service has been paid. Care taken to prevent accidents but I will not be responsible should any occur.

I wish to thank the public for their former patronage and solicit a continuance of same.
